Betty TV is making a series of compassionate documentaries for Channel 4 Learning about 14-19 year olds in Britain who have been labelled troublemakers by the adult world, whether at home, school, or by the police.

Each half hour film will focus on the life of one teenager. The films aim to question what is 'anti-social behaviour' and will be made from the teenager's point of view. They will be aimed at other teenagers rather than adults.

Betty TV are looking for teenagers with engaging stories, who have found themselves misbehaving or getting into trouble on different levels. The teenagers do not have to have been in trouble with the law, but must be teens with something to say.

If you would like to talk to us in confidence to tell us your view or ask more questions please contact Rachel or on 020 7290 0660 / 07745723758 and I will call you back. Alternatively email rachelt@bettytv.co.uk.
